CELTA Course report

Jeff teaches with an awareness of the needs and interests of the group, and establishes good rapport with his students. He plans well-staged lessons and reflects carefully on the learning process, suggesting improvements for future plans. His written work was of a reasonable standard and he contributed perceptively throughout the methodology component of the course.

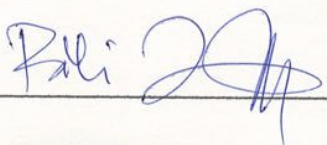

He has a professional manner in class and also when working with colleagues and tutors. Jeff has made pleasing progress throughout the course. With guidance and assistance he will become an effective teacher of English as a Foreign Language. He would fit in well into any staff room and was a pleasure to have on the course.

Strengths:

- Professional materials design
- Effective use of visual aids and the whiteboard
- Effective contextualisation
- Varying feedback techniques
- Catering for a range of learning styles

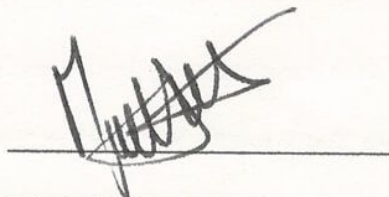

Areas to work on:

- Appropriate levels of challenge
- More student-centred activity
- Varying means of clarification
